

My wife and I joined this mission for the first time. The night before, I struggled because my mother-in-law in Hong Kong was seriously ill. After praying, God led us clearly.

Though only one person said he believed but had no time for church, it reminded me of the lost sheep.

I learned that Christ redeemed us at a great cost. I want to serve Him whenever I have the opportunity.

Ming Chou Tseng

I have been a Christian for over ten years, but this was my first mission. I struggled at first but was moved by God to join.

Some people were welcoming; others rejected us. I learned about communication, listening, and teamwork.

Thank God.

Cindy Lo

In summary, everything in this mission was God's work. Whether we did well or not, it was all part of learning how to share the Gospel.

We must preach in season and out of season, because God desires all people to be saved.

Maitland Short-Term Mission Sharing

THE IDEA OF a short-term mission trip to Maitland had already been raised two years ago, but due to various reasons it could not proceed. Thank God that the time has finally come. In March this year, a team of 13 members from RMI went to Maitland to share the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

The team was divided into three groups. Through connecting with local Chinese working in restaurants, we clearly saw the great need for the Gospel among them. God has also raised up Pastor Yi from the Christian and Missionary Alliance to shepherd and take up this ministry. We see that God's love for people never leaves nor forsakes them. We thank the Lord that Restaurant Fellowship can take part in this Gospel work.

Every short-term mission brings new insights, and this time was no exception. What impressed us most was that God's power is made perfect in our weaknesses. We also witnessed how every brother and sister worked in unity despite their limitations, faithfully fulfilling their roles, which led to a fruitful mission. This not only strengthened the faith of local believers but also trained and encouraged our members in evangelism. Personally, I have gained a deeper understanding of Christ's humility and love. May the Lord strengthen and guide me to become more like Him in my service.

Leon Lai (RMI Outreach Pastor)

There is a saying in the trade: “Re-fry the dough stick and it’s ready to be served.” This perfectly describes my experience in this mission.

For a long time, I joked about myself being forgetful due to age, but this time I was given the opportunity to join the Maitland mission team—truly God’s grace. Spiritually, I was greatly encouraged. Many teammates were older than me, and even the pastor, despite his age, drove all the way to Maitland to serve. Seeing everyone put on the “shoes of the Gospel” as soldiers of Christ deeply inspired me.

During outreach, I realized most Chinese people there work in the food industry—some in medium-sized restaurants, others in small family-run businesses. Many may have heard about the Gospel but often say, “I know, maybe later when I have time.” They are busy making a living. As the Bible says, “What good is it to gain the whole world, yet forfeit one’s soul?” We hope churches will continue to pray for this mission field.

One person who stayed in my heart was “Kin Jai,” a takeaway shop owner. He and his wife have run the shop for just over a year. They are skilled migrants from Hong Kong (civil engineering background). Even on his only day off, he travels to Sydney for further study. I admire his determination and pray that he will pursue Christ with the same passion.

Steven Wong

This was my first time joining a short-term mission. Although it was only a few days, I learned to boldly share the Gospel with strangers and introduce Restaurant Fellowship. I also learned teamwork, cooperation, and obedience.

What touched me most was seeing brothers and sisters not discouraged by rejection. Regardless of how many attended gatherings, they remained faithful in every task. This is a valuable lesson for me.

May the seeds of the Gospel we planted grow into great trees. May God receive all the glory!

Terrance Chen

Every mission trip brings a new experience. This four-day trip to Maitland involved about a three-hour drive. There are not many restaurants there, but the staff we met were very friendly.

One lady mentioned she had received a RMI Gospel publication in Newcastle over 20 years ago and was happy to see it again. We hope the seeds sown this time will help them understand God’s love and seize the opportunity to know Him.

What I appreciated most:

1. The well-planned routes and visits by coworkers
2. Joe and Brenda’s selfless service in preparing meals and Gospel materials

I also learned that when people reject the Gospel, we should not be discouraged. Instead, respond with kindness and continue faithfully sharing.

Kwai Kwong Chan

I thank God for allowing me to join again. I felt unwell before departure, but seeing Pastor Yi’s wife—an old friend of over 20 years—greatly encouraged me.

They travel three hours every Saturday to serve. This reminded me how small I am, yet God still uses me as His vessel.

May God forgive my weaknesses and continue to strengthen me.

Fung Ping Ho

This mission challenged me both physically and emotionally. Before going, I reflected on how to respond to God’s grace in my life.

While distributing Gospel packs, I thank the Holy Spirit for giving wisdom to guide a chef to attend an evangelistic meeting, where he accepted Christ.

Hallelujah! Praise the Lord!

Brenda

I joined this mission with a humble and cautious heart, praying God would use each of us. During evening reflections, we experienced strong teamwork and unity.

Some people welcomed us warmly and accepted Gospel gifts; others rejected us. We were not discouraged but continued to pray for them.

I learned how to communicate wisely in different situations. All glory to God.

Rebecca Chan

Reflecting on this mission:

1. I feel the ongoing responsibility of the Gospel
2. I see my self-centeredness still needs surrender to Christ
3. I thank God for guiding the team through challenges

May God continue to use Restaurant Fellowship for His Kingdom.

Amen.
